QUIMET TAKES BIG LEAD IN GOLF TOURNEY AT HALF

DOOLITTLE, KING OF SPEED FLIERS, TO RETIRE SOON

Will Attempt To Capture Speed Race Labor Day And Then Quit

St. Louis, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Major Jimmie Doolittle, former Army pilot, may have been a bit tired today after shooting 3,362 miles through the skies yesterday to win the Bendix Trophy in the National Air Races and later establish a new transcontinental airplane record but not tired to plan to return to the scene of his triumphs.

With only a short night's rest behind him, Doolittle was back in the air today, speeding for Cleveland, where yesterday he was declared the winner of the air race from Burbank, Cal., and from where he streaked onward to Newark Airport, N. J., to break Capt. Frank Hawks' transcontinental record of 12 hours 25 minutes by an hour and 10 minutes. He left St. Louis at 8:10 A. M. (CST).

Doolittle's average speed for this 2,454 mile hop from coast to coast was 225 miles an hour.

Keeps Promise
Richer by $10,000, the former Army pilot and stunt flier returned to St. Louis at 10:22 P. M. (CST) last night because he had promised a group of friends with whom he is associated in business that he would take them to the air races today.

Feeling little effect from his long stay in the air, which began when he left Burbank at 3:35 A. M. (CST) yesterday, Doolittle pushed away from his well-wishers when he landed and hastened for his home.

He made his last hop—from Cleveland to St. Louis—as a passenger in the plane of Jim Haizlip of St. Louis, having left his prize winning and record breaking Laird solution type biplane in Cleveland.

Timed in 9 hours and 15 minutes, Doolittle led seven other contestants in the Bendix trophy race, arriving in Cleveland at 12:50 P. M. (CST) yesterday. In finishing first in this 2,046-mile flight from Burbank, he received $7,500 in prize money. The other $2,500 was received for breaking Hawks' record.

His Pauses Brief
After a brief pause in Cleveland, the St. Louisan left at 1:04 P. M. (C. S. T.) and arrived at Newark airport at 2:50 P. M. to wrest Hawks' crown. At 3:50 he was in the air again, headed for Cleveland where he arrived at 5:42 P. M. On the last hop to St. Louis he left at 6:53 P. M.

In the Burbank-Cleveland race, Harold S. Johnson of Chicago was second, and the others finished in the following order: Beeler Blevins of Atlanta; Captain Ira Eaker of Washington; Art Gobel of Los Angeles; and James Hall of New York. Another contestant, Walter Hunter of Sparta, Ill., crashed near Terre Haute, Ind., and although his plane burned, he escaped injury. Lou Reichers of Arlington, N. Y., the last of the eight who started from Burbank, was forced out of the race at Beatrice, Nebr., after he had become lost.

PLANS RETIREMENT
Cleveland, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Jimmy Doolittle, whose public knows there's nothing in a name, is hanging up his racing helmet and goggles on a lofty peg.

To the former Army daredevil, however, his final joust with speed is less interesting as a record-breaking performance than an opportunity to study engineering and design.

In his first lengthy pause here after winning the Bendix Derby and setting up a west-east transcontinental record of 11 hours and 15 minutes, he chose to speak of his interest in the engine.

He viewed the long dash as a scientific test of engine and plane and as quickly turned his eyes to the future when he will measure another engine with the same plane in the Thompson trophy race Labor Day.

"My motor was perfect," he said, but even as he spoke the plane that was being given no more rest than the pilot was in a hangar where a geared Wasp will replace a Wasp junior.

There was a full smile on the face of aviation's man of the hour, whose career has been one of the paradoxes as he kindly greeted everyone from high executives who wanted to wing his hand to small boys.

Once a mining engineer, his fame has been gained not from exploits below the ground but high above it; a "landlubber" as an Air Corps flier, his first major race victory was in a Schneider Cup contest for seaplanes; (Continued on Page 2).

Promise Changed Season On Ducks

Washington, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department announced today the open season on ducks, geese, brant and coot would be changed in Illinois, Missouri and Kansas but the changes to be made were not specified.

The season on the wild fowl in the three states from October 1 to November 1. Numerous requests to postpone the season one month have been made.

President Hoover recently shortened the hunting season on geese and ducks to one month because of the scarcity of the birds due to unfavorable breeding conditions.

At the Agriculture Department it was said the change would not be made until Secretary Hyde returned from Kansas City, probably the latter part of next week.

Unusual Warmth, Rain Predicted

Washington, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Unusually torrid weather, broken in many sections by showers, is the general weather forecast for the nation's Labor-Day week-end.

Sunday will bring rain to parts of the north and middle Atlantic states, Florida, the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake states and the Dakotas, Montana, Oregon and Washington.

Most of the south has a forecast of fair and seasonable weather, but the north may expect "a rather warm week-end" for September.

At the coroner's inquest in her death, held Friday afternoon, it developed that because of a hard rain Mrs. Axelson was carrying an umbrella low over her head as she stepped from the curb toward a North Avenue street car, and apparently walked directly in front of the automobile, which knocked her down and fractured her skull, causing instant death.

NAUTILUS' RADIO REPORTS U-BOAT SAFE AND SOUND

Ends Anxiety Caused By Five-Day Silence On Part Of Wilkins

BULLETIN.

Oslo, Norway, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins reported by radio from his polar submarine Nautilus this evening that the craft had been damaged in a dive under the ice pack but the damage was not of serious nature.

Oslo, Norway, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Somewhere within the Arctic Circle the adventurous submarine Nautilus was safe and sound today after five days of anxious silence.

Sir Hubert Wilkins' radio operator was contacted by the meteorological station at Tromsø yesterday and they "talked" for 20 minutes. The commander of the expedition reported that all aboard were well and sent greetings of assurance to his friends.

The Bergen radio station and the sloop Fridtjof Nansen also established communication with the submarine, but none received any indication of its position. It was believed to be lying in Eckman Bay off the island of Spitzbergen.

The good news brought an end to mounting anxiety in shipping circles and caused the cancellation of plans to start by sea and by air on a relief expedition. Captain Riser Larsen had been preparing to take off from Bergen and Norwegian authorities had ordered ships to sail from Harstad.

On leaving here August 18, Sir Hubert told his well-wishers not to worry if the Nautilus was not heard from for several days at a time because he intended not to take any risks that might endanger the lives of his men.

Mac MILLAN TO RETIRE

Bar Harbor, Labrador, Sept. 5.—(By Radio to the United Press)—Captain Donald B. MacMillan, his exploration mission into the far north completed for another year, awaited lifting of fog today before hopping off on a non-stop flight to Rockland, Me.

MacMillan planned to leave in the Lockheed Vega plane, Viking, piloted by Charles Rocheville, as soon as the fog blanket was swept away. The schooner Bowdoin, which brought the other members of the MacMillan-Labrador Expedition will sail tomorrow for Sydney, Newfoundland.

The Bowdoin's ultimate destination was Wicasset, Me., where it was expected to arrive on Monday, Sept. 14. It will be overhauled and refitted for another voyage next year when MacMillan and his followers will be "frozen in" through the Arctic winter of 1932-33.

The Bowdoin, which is commanded by Captain John Crowell, Gloucester, Mass., has on board Prof. Adelbert Fernald of the Harvard University School of Science, and Glenn Kershner, Culver City, Cal., in addition to the crew.

Donation of School Books Is Requested

Many urgent requests for school books for children of unemployed in Dixon have been received by Superintendent I. B. Potter, and a plan was announced today which is to be given a thorough trial, with a view of supplying books to grade and high school students who are found worthy. Teachers have volunteered their services in conducting the book department which will be established at the south central and high school buildings.

Parents and students alike are urged to take any school books to either of the buildings to be distributed to children whose parents are unable to provide text books for them. The teachers will list the books and as the needy pupils are enrolled, they will be furnished with these books.

The departments will be opened with the beginning of school Tuesday and parents and pupils having books which can be furnished are urged to take them to either the south central or high school building Tuesday morning.

Hoped Contributions To Welfare Supply Will Continue

Almost 600 jars of fruit, vegetables and jellies have been delivered to the Goodfellow welfare storage room at the city hall and listed by members of the fire department for distribution during the winter months. Each day the fire department members receive liberal donations to this worthy project and many of the women's organizations of the city are planning canning bees which is expected to bring the number up to more than a thousand jars by the close of next week.

The first week of the venture has far exceeded the expectations of the sponsors of the plan. Fuller, seven jars vegetables; Mrs. D. H. Spencer, 12 jars vegetables; Mrs. Elizabeth Close, five jars vegetables; Mrs. E. L. H. W. Harms added the cause with the donation of 25 empty fruit jars which are greatly in demand by the many women's organizations of the city who are planning canning bees in the near future.

Woodhouse Company of New York City, wholesale hardware dealers, who a few days ago requested a sample of the hedge trimmer, a new development in the Clipper line, and the success of its trial is evidenced in the large order received here today.

Police Attempted to Stop Payment of Admission but the Tenant Constructed a High Board Fence and as he had a Lease Police Could Do Nothing

Police said they had no clues as to the identity of the persons who burned the fence but believed it was a group who objected to paying admission to the grounds.

Hundreds of persons went to the scene of the fire but refused to aid the firefighters. Police said no investigation of the fire would be made.

Mrs. Charles Fleming, Northboro, Mass., sister of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, fifth victim of the mail order romance, retained J. Philip Clifford, Clarkburg attorney, today in an effort to recover funds believed appropriated by Powers. Powers is believed to have obtained more than $4000 from Mrs. Lemke before killing her.

A dramatic scene ensued when Mrs. Fleming and other relatives confronted the man accused of killing Mrs. Lemke, Mrs. Asta Bulck Elcher and her three children of Park Ridge, Ill. Mrs. Fleming and the others accused Powers of being the man who under the name of Cornelius Orvin Pierson last Northboro with Mrs. Lemke, left July 28, ostensibly to be married.

Powers' only retort to the accusations was "I have nothing to say."

"You're Pierson," Mrs. Fleming said, pointing her finger at the pudgy Disheveled prisoner. "You're the man who stayed at my house in Northboro and took my sister away. What did you do with her? What did you kill her for?"

Mrs. Fleming's husband also accused the identified Powers as the man who left with Mrs. Lemke to be married and live "on a farm in Iowa."

The coroner's jury which met for a second time after the arrival of Mrs. Lemke's relatives who established identification returned a verdict accusing Powers of all five killings. The jury stated that all but Harry Elcher, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Elcher, had met death by strangulation. Harry was killed by being struck on the head with a hammer or other blunt instrument the jurors decided.

SEEK MISSING PROPERTY

Clarkburg, W. Va., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Legal action to recover from $12,000 to $14,000 in cash, bonds and jewelry which relatives of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Worcester, Mass., claim she had in her possession when she left Massachusetts July 28 in company with Harry F. Powers, who is accused of killing her, was begun today by Mrs. Charles Flemming of Worcester sister of Mrs. Lemke.

Counsel for Mrs. Flemming said they were preparing to have the Union National Bank here appointed administrator of Mrs. Lemke's estate. The attorneys of the law firm of Powell & Clifford said they would attempt to obtain possession of the property Mrs. Lemke is alleged to have had.

Mrs. Flemming told the attorneys her sister withdrew $4,287.22 in cash from two Worcester banks: that she had between $6,000 and $8,000 invested in bonds and jewelry valued at $1,500.

Police said that when Powers was arrested last week, he gave the key to a safety deposit box in a Clarkburg bank to his attorney, J. Ed Law. Officers have endeavored to ascertain the contents of the box but Law has refused to permit them to examine the contents.

DRIVES PLANE

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 5.—(UP)—Ray Moore, San Francisco pilot, rocketed his "mystery ship" an estimated 300 miles an hour at Cleveland airport today in a test flight of preparation for the Thompson race of the National Air Races Labor Day.

While declining to reveal his speed, Moore said upon landing that the performance of his low winged speedster was "very satisfactory."

BURN ENCLOSURE AROUND SLAYER'S MURDER GARAGE

Puts End To Admission Charge To Powers' Slaughter House

Clarkburg, W. Va., Sept. 5.—(UP)—Hoodlums burned a fence today around the garage where Harry F. Powers, matrimonial agency Bluebeard killed and burned two women and three children.

Police said they believed the fence was burned by persons who objected to paying 25 cents for the privilege of seeing the murder scene. Police said there was no one at the scene when they arrived. The fence had been torn down, saturated with kerosene and set afire.

There was no crowd about the jail today and on other demonstration in the town, police said.

The property in Quiet Dell, six miles from here, was leased to a man by the name of McClure by Mrs. Lucila Powers, Powers' wife, who owns the property.

Thousands had been going to the garage where the gruesome killings took place.

Police attempted to stop payment of admission but the tenant constructed a high board fence and as he had a lease police could do nothing.

Police said they had no clues as to the identity of the persons who burned the fence but believed it was a group who objected to paying admission to the grounds.

Hundreds of persons went to the scene of the fire but refused to aid the firefighters. Police said no investigation of the fire would be made.

A Michigan murder suspect was said to be an occupant of the machine which passed through Rockford about 11 o'clock today and when police of that city attempted to stop the machine, they were fired upon. The car, it was reported sped through Rockford and came south on the Black Hawk Trail.

Westminster, Md., Sept. 5.—(AP)—John Henry Mitten, believed to be the oldest newspaper editor in the country, died yesterday at his home here. He would have been 87 years old on Sept. 1.

Mr. Mitten, active editor of the Westminster Time, a weekly, until three weeks before his death, was awarded a medal two years ago as the oldest newspaper man by the Editors' Association of the United States.

From his boyhood he was engaged in the printing business, being an apprentice before the Civil War. He saw active service and was one of the two surviving Union veterans in the county. He and George K. Mather started the Times in 1911.

The first three months of this year Russia exported more than a million pounds of candy to the United States.

Quimet, by coming back in 37 only two over par, covered the first round in 76, Westland was 43-88-81.

Quimet seeking his first championship since 1914, was the first to drive off. A large gallery watched the veteran's final comeback attempt.

Hole 1, 375 yards, par 4: Quimet started out with a great shot. Westland pushed his drive to the rough and his second to a trip. Quimet sepanked a great second which landed six feet wide of the pin stopping four feet wide with his fourth shot, Westland conceded the hole.

Quimet 4; Westland 5.

Hole 2, 545 yards, par 5: Both drivers hit fairway and both seconds lined the right rough 30 yards short of the green. Quimet arched his third 35 feet to the right of the pin, Jack sending his 38 feet to the opposite side. Jack missed his by a foot but the bespectacled Quimet dropped his. The ball rolled down a slight incline andopped in on a fast run. Quimet was one under par and 2 up.

Hole 3, 228 yards, par 3: Jack sent his tee shot 35 yards hode high, but Quimet pulled his far to the left rough. He dug in deep and sailed a beauty, which stuck six feet of the pin, but couldn't sink the putt and lost the hole to Jack's easy 3. Quimet 1 up.

Westland 3; Quimet 4. Quimet 1 up.

Hole 4, 365 yards, par 4: Quimet hit a great drive, which cleared the dog-leg 260 yards out. Westland's failed to take the hook and it landed in the right rough. Westland's second was short. His third went over the green. Quimet hit his third eight feet of the pin and got an easy four to go 2 up. Jack's fourth almost dropped in.

Westland 5; Quimet 4. Quimet 2 up.

Hole 5, 414 yards, par 4: Westland out-drove Quimet by five yards down the fairway. Westland, still offline with his irons, pushed his second to the ledge of a bunker. Quimet, playing his brins perfectly, hit his on, 25 feet wide of the pin. Jack's third was on but 18 feet short. Quimet hit his putt too easily and "as six feet short, Jack's putt was on but 18 feet over. Quimet missed. So did Jack, and Quimet went 3 up.

RHYTHM
THEY tell me new methods now govern the Muses,
The modes of expression have changed with the times;
That low is the rank of the poet who uses
The old-fashioned verse with intentional rhymes.
And quiet out of date is rhythmical metre.
The critics declare it an insult to art.
But oh! the sweet swing of it, oh! the clear ring of it.
Oh! the great pulse of it, right from the heart,
Art or no art.

I sat by the side of that old poet,
Ocean,
And counted the billows that broke
On the rocks;
The tide lilted in with a rhythmical motion;
The sea gulls dipped downward in time-keeping flocks.
I watched while giant wave gathered its forces.
And then on the gray granite precipice burst;
And I knew as I counted, while other waves mounted,
I knew the tenth billow would rhyme with the first.

Below in the village a church-bell was chiming,
And back in the woodland a little bird sang;
And, doubt it who will, yet those two sounds were rhyming.

As out o'er the hill-tops they echoed and rang.
The wind and the trees fell to talking together;
And nothing they said was didactic or terse;
But everything spoken was told in unbroken

And beautiful rhyming and rhythmic verse.
So rhythm I hail it, thought critics assail it,
And hold melting rhymes as an insult to art.

For Oh! the sweet swing of it, oh! the dear ring of it,
Oh! the strong pulse of it, right from the heart,
Art or no art.

Trottnow-Petit Wedding Ceremony Solemnized This Morning

A simple, yet beautiful wedding ceremony of the early autumn was solemnized this morning at 9 o'clock at the parsonage to St. Patrick's Catholic church, with the pastor, Reverend Father T. L. Walsh, officiating at the marriage of Miss Josephine Trottnow, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Trottnow, of Dixon, and Floyd Petit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Petit of Rockford, former Dixon residents. The bride made a charming picture in her wedding gown of brown chiffon, with accessories matching. She wore a chic brown hat and carried a lovely bouquet of yellow roses and baby breath.

Miss Sara Atkinson, of Lake Bluff, Ill., was the maid of honor, Walter Engelbrecht of Libertyville, Ill., was the best man.

Miss Atkinson wore an attractive gown of green and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink roses. After the ceremony a wedding reception was held and a daintily appointed breakfast was served to the bridal party, relatives and a few friends at the Hotel Dixon. The dining room was prettily decorated in yellow and white, with flowers of the early autumn season. A four tier wedding cake graced the bride's table. Those assisting at the reception were Misses Aletha Hubbel, Lucille Trautman, Avis Toot and Ann Hofmann.

Mr. and Mrs. Petit left on a brief honeymoon which will be spent in Minnesota and Canada. After Sept. 15th, they will be at home to their friends in Rockford. Mrs. Petit has been one of the most efficient and popular young teachers in the Dixon public schools, teaching the fourth grade in the Woodworth school. Mr. Petit who has many Dixon friends, living here most of his life, is an experimental engineer for the J. I. Case Co., and is a fine, ambitious young man.

Dixon friends unite in extending to the young couple best wishes for every happiness in the future. Out of town guests in attendance at the wedding and reception included Mr. and Mrs. Earl Trottnow of Aurora; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Trottnow, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Petit and son, Rockford; Mrs. Charles Johnson, and Mrs. Herman Puckett, Peoria; Fred Castles, and Mrs. Emma English, Mendota; Mrs. Alice Castles and daughter, LaSalle.

Miss Mary Wenberg Wed at Cleveland, O.

The marriage of Mary Ann Wenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Wenberg of Oregon, to Ralph W. Budden of Cleveland, O., took place August 22 in the Swedish Lutheran Bethel church in Cleveland.

The bride was dressed in white satin and her veil was gathered with orange blossoms. The maid of honor, Dorothy Benton Jergens, wore pink net with blue ribbons. Two bridesmaids, Gertrude Strobe and Sylvia Wenberg, wore peach and blue organdy. The bride's bouquet was of white gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her attendants carried mixed bouquets.

Walter Sherman was the best man and Elmer Nosky and Walter Jergens were ushers.

Eulalia Erickson sang "I Love You Truly" and Levi Johnson, the organist, played selections throughout the service.

At 5 o'clock a dinner was served at the Budden home and the reception was held at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Mrs. Budden was a graduate of O. C. H. S. In 1928, and her many friends here join in extending congratulations.

Nourishing Stew For School Lunch

Many schools will be faced this winter with providing some nourishing food for pupils who will not be fed adequately at home. A plate of stew will be a very good answer to this problem. In the first place it can be prepared at a small cost. In the second place, it combines meat, an excellent source of necessary protein, with vegetables, which the child needs. In the third place, it is a savory dish which is liked by everyone. And in the fourth place, it is easy to prepare and serve.

The meats used in making stews are high in flavor and low in cost. The National Live Stock and Meat Board makes these suggestions for cuts to buy to use in the preparation of economical stews.

Cuts of Meat to Use
The breast, neck, flank and shank of lamb makes fine stews. For the sake of variety part of the meat may be browned now and then to give a different flavor to the stew and the broth. However, it is not necessary to brown the meat in order to have a tasty dish, because of the delicate yet distinctive flavor of the lamb.

The same cuts of veal as of lamb are economical for this purpose. Beef flank, shank and neck are the lowest price beef cuts to use for stews.

Ten or 12 pounds of any of these meats will serve 30 or 35 children. Meat extends its flavor to the vegetables cooked with it and to the sauce in which it is cooked, so a little will go a long way.

The vegetables which are available in all places all winter are the ones to combine with the meat. Potatoes, carrots, onions and cabbage add their quota of minerals, vitamins and carbohydrates.

In cooking the stew, the temperature of the liquid should be kept be-

Fur-Trimmed Elbows

Elbowing its way to fashion's forefront is the red tweed frock with fur elbow trim. Since sleeves have captured the autumn style spotlight this practical daytime costume wears its red fox fur banding just above the elbows, achieving the smart balloon outline. Two large buttons are the only other trimming. The close-fitting Turban, envelope purse and opera pumps are matching. A choker necklace of brown and beige relieves the severity of the neckline. In such a gown you may shop comfortably, lunch at your favorite hotel or club or view the autumn race meets.

Picnic For Bride-to-Be on North Lookout

Last evening Miss Dorothy Bovey, who will become the bride of Burton Lee Pottersveld in the near future, was the guest of honor at a picnic and shower held for her at Lowell Park, the picnic being enjoyed on the north lookout. The happy occasion was planned by Miss Olive Palmer and was a surprise to Miss Bovey who was made aware of the plans when the baskets were all ready and the cars ready for the trip. There were eight guests and everyone reports a fine time. After the tempting picnic was enjoyed Miss Bovey was presented with a number of strings and thereby hangs a tale, a treasure hunt as it were, for as she followed the strings to their end she found each tied to a lovely gift, each guest present being a donor of some nice article for the new home to be, presented with best wishes for happiness for the young couple.

Delightful Evening At Reynolds Woode

A delightful time was afforded the thirty or forty guests at Reynolds Woode last evening, invited by Mesdames D. G. Harvey and J. G. Ralston to enjoy the program of interpretive dancing given by Jane and Polly Harvey and Joan and Lucille Ralston, talented young daughters of the hostesses.

The program was given in the patio in front of the terrace which surrounded with blooming flowers and shrubs, a most attractive setting for the unusual program.

Miss Elsa Durand Mauer of Chicago, who has been especially successful in teaching interpretive dancing to the reading of poetry, and particularly so with young people, has coached the young artists of last evening's program with surprisingly beautiful results, and besides the pleasure afforded the audience, one knows that the performers must know and grasp the meaning, the mood, and expression of the writer to be able to portray so cleverly the poems as they are read, and herein lies one of the greatest virtues of this instruction. Polly and Jane Harvey, gracefully danced to scenes read from Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream, depicting the whimsical Puck and the Fairy Queen. Jane danced to the reading of "The King's Breakfast." Both Polly and Jane danced to the reading of the "Passing of Pan." Although much younger Joan and Lucille Ralston gave equally entertaining interpretations, to several beautiful selections, read by Miss Mauer. Joan has remarkable poise and the faculty of adaptation while Lucille is a dainty little dancer. After the delightful program delicious refreshments were served.

What Paris Is Using

By K. DORSAY

PARIS—The Paris vogue for tailored clothes and accessories has spread until it encompasses practically every personal possession. Few fanciful touches are allowed fashions these days—furniture, rugs, books and all table knick-knacks follow this current fancy for tailored, modern line.

Even little jeweled clocks that have been previously as elaborate and decorative as anyone liked them to be, now take on a "tailored" aspect. It is difficult to distinguish any feminine touches on them—the clocks shown in all smart Paris shops might serve equally well for a man or a woman's desk.

The "tailored" clock in the sketch is a general Paris favorite. It is made of crystal and silver—the crystal cut in a diagonal checkered design. The only touch of color is in the clock-face which is incrustated in tiny stripes of red coral to form a dial—which are also on "modern" lines.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton
©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

I thought the day was over for scaring children, but this happened less than a week ago, and I repeat it here to enlighten those who thought as I did that the dark ages in child training were over. Evidently they are not.

A certain family with a little boy three years of age engaged a nurse who came highly recommended from a family of standing in another city—not a young woman, but 30 or 35 years of age.

Billy was balky about something. "If you don't do it, I will bend your fingers back," said the nurse. His mother overheard the remark and laid down the law then and there. Billy didn't understand what his nurse meant, fortunately, and the nurse was allowed to stay—on trial. But a day or so later she told Billy that she would put him down in a dark hole in the cellar and put a cross dog outside to keep him there. This time there was no parley. Billy's nurse left.

Threats Plant Fear Complex
Did you ever? Would you have believed that there still existed people who would dare to talk to a child like that?

I remember about four or five years ago of hearing a rather nice looking young woman in a store say to her little girl, "If you touch anything again I'll put your hand on the stove when I get you home."

I never got over that—really up until that time I had never heard such a vicious threat—I didn't know people ever talked like that to little children. She didn't mean it, neither did the nurse mean it, but that doesn't matter. Such speeches are enough to strike a terrible terror in life in general into little people's hearts.

It doesn't matter that we don't actually call in the ragman to steal Tommy or send word to the big black bear to stand in his room and wait that he go to sleep, or call the dentist to come and hurt him, or the policeman to put him in jail—the thing that matters are the words, the silly, sinister threats. A fear complex does not arise from actual facts as much as from idle words.

Poor Form of Discipline
One time when I was little a maid used to say to me, "If you don't do so and so, I will take you out in the park and lose you." I used to dream about being lost in the big, lonely park. It was my favorite nightmare for years until my own common sense argued me out of it as I grew older. But it made me miserable. I have never gotten over my complex about being lost, old as I am. When I look back I can readily analyze the terror planted in my child's breast by a threat.

NO HONOR IN CRIME.

If the outlawed element of society could be given enough rope it would hang itself undoubtedly. But in the process it would destroy entirely too many innocent bystanders. When one gang makes war upon another, in the sinister fashion of the underworld, it is sounding a warning to cemetery sections to get busy. However, these self-dug graves are always surrounded by slim green plots of innocent victims.

New evidence of this has come from the Michigan state prison at Marquette, where gangsters, foiled in an attempt at escape, and one confederate, committed suicide. The three desperadoes realized that they would be captured. They twisted Patrick Henry's challenging words, "give me liberty or give me death," to their own crooked needs. They weren't game enough to meet their conquerors. So they killed themselves.

But as they started their attempt at freedom they shot the prison physician. It was a cowardly act. Even gangsters sometimes are better sports than that. The three men pretended they were ill. They appealed to Dr. A. W. Hornbogen for medical attention which was granted immediately. Probably laughing to themselves at their own cleverness the crooks cold-bloodedly killed the physician.

Blood thirsty enemies of society can scarcely be called men. They are motivated entirely by beastly motives, and if another is in their way he must die. Not because he has wronged them. Just because he happens to be there. With so many finer interests in the world it is regrettable that society must spend so much of its time and money in destroying a human element that cannot be controlled in any other fashion. This element must be stamped out before people will be free to pursue more pleasant lines of interest.

Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are all endangered today. More so, because the criminal minded have access to the same scientific knowledge that the protective element has. Desperadoes, at heart, are cowards. The Michigan men were. When they were defeated they killed themselves rather than face the consequences. A good old-fashioned scare may not convert a desperado but it will protect an innocent man sometimes.

THE FARMERS ARE DOING IT.

Do not get the idea that the National Farm Cooperatives are mere government agencies—that the government is engaged in the buying and selling of farm products.

Every nationally organized farmers' marketing association now in existence, of which there are tight, has been organized by the cooperatives themselves and are farmer-owned and farmer-controlled. They have been organized under the agricultural marketing act and approved by the Farm Board because they have complied with the provisions of the law on that subject. The Farm Board has a revolving fund from which it may lend money to those cooperatives and whenever it does it must see to it that the cooperative is so managed as to make the loan safe. Beyond that the board has nothing to do with any farm cooperative that conducts its business according to law.

Since the Farm Board was established nearly two years ago, there has been an increase of 70 per cent in the membership of some of the cotton cooperatives, of 64 per cent in large scale wool associations, of 54 per cent in large scale poultry and egg associations and of 29 per cent in 48 of the more important dairy products marketing associations. In round numbers the Farm Board advises that there has been an average gain of 30 per cent in the membership of all large scale cooperative associations.

What this means is that the farmers are finding it to their advantage to belong to these cooperatives, that through them they are getting better returns for their products than when they were handling them as individuals. The solution of the farm problem in America is orderly marketing, and that is what the national cooperatives under the guidance of Farm Board, are organized to do.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The pony that wee Clowny rode seemed to enjoy his tiny load. He raised his front feet into the air and almost stood up straight. Then wee little Scouty shouted, "Hang on tight and you will surely be all right. Be careful you are not carried off at quite a dizzy rate."

"Gee, if that pony starts to run, the ride won't be such glorious fun." And then the pony snorted and began to run around. Poor Clowny feared that he would fall and didn't like the ride at all. He held his breath and really wished his feet were on the ground.

A cowboy on another horse was playing very safe, of course. He didn't want to see a lad sent sailing through the air. And so he started very fast and caught the pony's head at last. "Hop off," he shouted. "Then you can recover from your scare."

This wee Clowny did. And soon he loudly shouted, "Aw shucks! I like that sort of ride." The others, knowing he was bluffing, all laughed very loud and long. Then wee Scouty shouted, "You are game, but when you bluff it is a shame. At least you didn't tumble off so you can feel real proud."

Another cowboy then came near and he said, "Now lads, please all watch here. I have a type of lasso that I guess you have never seen. It has two wooden balls held tight and when I throw, with all my might, they swing around a calf's legs and he is toppled neat and clean."

He then proved just what he had explained. The rope went hurling over his head and, as a calf ran right near by, he let the long rope sail. Around the calf's legs it soon curled and to the ground the little beast was hurled. Of course it tried to get away, but it was to no avail.

OUIMET REACHES ANOTHER CHANCE AT GOLF CROWN

Respectable Bostonian Has Chance To Again Win Amateur Title

Beverly Country Club, Chicago, Sept. 5—(UP)—The golfing trail blazed by Francis Ouimet through 19 championships from 1913 down to 1931 reached another milestone today in the final round of the national amateur golf tournament.

Titleless for 10 years, Ouimet faced Jack Westland of Chicago, in the 36-hole final match which gave him an opportunity to win back the amateur crown he held in 1914.

Back in 1913, Ouimet was called the finest golfer in this country by Jerome D. Travers, famous old champion, and after 19 years, the respectable Bostonian remains one of America's outstanding players.

For an opponent Ouimet had a young Chicago broker who has qualified in only one previous national amateur tournament.

Experience and a methodical game which never wavers despite an opponent's rally or lapse, made Ouimet a favorite to succeed Bobby Jones, retired titleholder who is now plodding links in the role of journalist.

Described by contestants and gallery as a "fishy-cold" competitor, Westland promised to give Ouimet one of the most trying tests of his long and mercurial career.

Has No Fear

Between draughts from a tall frosted glass, Westland remarked in Beverly's noisy locker room after yesterday's matches:

"Wouldn't it be great if Ouimet could win back the title he held so long ago? Right now I almost hope he wins it but tomorrow I'll feel different and I'll be out there trying as hard as I know how to win from him."

"Do you have any fear of Ouimet because of his experience and steady play?"

"Absolutely none," the slim Chicagoan answered. "I've been playing this game of golf since I was 13 and it's uncertain as to the stock market. Today on the heights, tomorrow in the depths."

The long, hard climb to the finals ended yesterday when Ouimet, down to an opponent for the first time during the tournament, triumphed over young Billy Howell, Richmond, Va., in a see-saw match which was squared seven times. Ouimet's magic putter won for him on the 35th hole, 2 and 1.

In the other semi-final Westland conquered Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., New York, son of a professional golfer, 3 and 2. Westland's ability to outplay his opponent on the first nine holes of each round once more proved the winning margin for the slender Chicagoan. It was one of the first nine that Westland shot a 33, three under par, to lead the first day's qualifying round. Against McCarthy he shot a 37, one over par, in the morning and finished all even, but he shot another 37 in the afternoon and won five holes while losing only one.

McCarthy staged a comeback after he found himself 6 down at the end of 27 holes, and reduced Westland's lead to 3 up and to play but he waited too long to begin his rally.

One of the remarkable things about Westland's game is his manner of putting. After he lines up his putt and hits the ball he does not raise his eyes until the ball either drops in or misses the cup.

How They Got There

Westland reached the final round of national amateur golf tournament. First round: (18) holes Ouimet defeated John R. Shields, Seattle, Wash., 4 and 3.

Westland defeated Samuel M. Parks, Jr., Pittsburgh, 4 and 2.

Second round: (18) holes Ouimet defeated Frank Connolly, St. Clements, Mich., 5 and 4.

Westland defeated George T. Dunlap, Jr., Garden City, N. Y., 3 and 2.

Third round: (36) holes Ouimet defeated Paul Jackson, Kansas City, Mo., 7 and 6.

Westland defeated Arthur (Ducky) Yates, Rochester, co-medalist, 1 up Semi-final (36 holes): Ouimet defeated Billy Howell, Richmond, Va., 2 and 1.

Westland defeated Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., New York, 3 and 2.

Not at all worried by the fact that an unkind fate and the St. Louis Browns prevented his setting a new American League record for consecutive victories, Robert Moses Grove of the Athletics now is plugging away at another mark that has withstood the best efforts of American League hurlers for 19 years.

Back in 1912, Joe Wood won 34 games for the Boston Red Sox and lost only five for a winning percentage of .872. It has never been bettered, but Grove stands an excellent chance of turning the trick today.

He rang up victory No. 27 yesterday at the expense of Boston, 2 to 0. He has lost three, giving him a percentage of .900 with some four or five games to go. That's the A's have 25 more contests on their schedule, and the great south-

Sports Parade

By HENRY MCLEMORE United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, Sept. 5—(UP)—That shame-faced gentleman with the hat pulled over his eyes who saw hurrying toward the river this fine morning was the critic who earlier this season predicted Lefty Grove would suffer a bad slump before the season ended.

This critic said Grove undoubtedly would sweep all before him during May, June and July, but that the furnace heat of July and August would slow the great southpaw of the Philadelphia Athletics down to a normal pace.

Well, here it is September, 5, less than a month before the season's close, and Grove still is travelling like a house afire. The left-handed one won his 27th victory of the season yesterday and in doing so allowed the Boston Red Sox but three hits. If that is a bigging down, it might be a good idea for Grimes, Marberry, Ferrell, and the rest of the boys to take a slump cure.

Grove's triumph of yesterday all but assured him of 30 victories this year. The Athletics have 25 more games to play and Lefty is certain to work four times and probably will take the mound six times.

When Grove reaches the 30 mark he will be the first pitcher to turn the trick since Sergeant Jim Bagby buzzed 'em down the line for the Cleveland Indians in 1920.

This talk about Grove being overworked sounds good, but it's not quite true. We haven't taken the time to make a thorough study of the records, but we'll bet you ten to one that Lefty has averaged four days of rest between each of his appearances.

Several months ago when Fred Perry first announced his intentions of competing in our national tennis singles championship we predicted a victory for the English Davis-cupper in the final round. Now that the championship is upon us we see no reason to change our mind. It will be Perry and Vines in the final round with John Bull's boy coming out on top. No? Well, you wait and see.

And while we are forecasting we might as well tell you that Twenty Grand will make a parade of the Saratoga Cup and that old man Ouimet will take Mister Westland for a ride. How did we find these things out? The same way we learned that Dempsey was going to beat Tunney, and Helen Wills wouldn't regain her national title.

Dempsey Slugs With Fairly Good Fighter

Eugene, Ore., Sept. 5—(UP)—Two pounds lighter than he had been in years and with three more exhibition tour victories to his credit Jack Dempsey was well along his way today along the "comeback trail" which many a former world's champion fighter has tried to travel but the desired end of which none ever has reached.

The old "Manassa Mauler" weighed 196 pounds when he entered the ring last night against Jim Byrnes, 203, admittedly the stiffest opponent the former champion has faced during his present exhibition tour.

Dempsey did not try to knock out the Cox Bay fighter. Several times the fighters stood toe to toe in the center of the ring and slugged it out. Dempsey was the winner every time, but he took considerable punishment himself. He stood it well.

"He's the best I've met so far," Dempsey said after the fight. "I'd like to meet him again."

After fighting four really stiff rounds with Byrnes, Dempsey sparred one round against Jack Baxter of Eureka and then a round against Henry Glanz of Portland. It was evident he could have finished any opponent any time he wished. Neither had much to offer and he punched them at will, but had his punches.

Approximately 8,000 persons jammed into the athletic pavilion to see the former champion in action. It was the first time Dempsey has weighed under 198 since he began the exhibition tour.

What Averages Of Big Leagues Show This Week

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Chicago, Sept. 5—(AP)—Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankees' first baseman, has quite a climb ahead of him if he is to win the batting championship of the American League, but his right to the title of most valuable all-around batsman, right now is unchallenged.

According to semi-official averages which include Thursday's games, Columbia Lou dominated five branches of offensive baseball, and ranked fourth in the percentage list with 354. He batted in 23 runs during the past week to bring his total to 161, and put himself in a good position to regain the major league record for punching in scores which he relinquished to Hack Wilson last season. Gehrig held the record at 175 until Wilson accounted for 190 in 1930.

Gehrig also headed the list in scoring, with 140 runs, 10 more than he had last week; made eleven hits to boost his leading total to 185; had 361 total bases and 40 home runs. He raked opposing hurlers for six homers during the period and moved out ahead of his famous teammate, Babe Ruth, the other three leaders which remained as they were: Earl Webb of Boston had 55 doubles; Earl Johnson of Detroit had made 16 triples, while Ben Chapman, the Yankee speedster, had 53 stolen bases.

Al Simmons of the Athletics, although he failed to return to the wars, remained in the lead for the individual title with a percentage of 385. Five points ahead of Ruth who followed a point during the week. Dropping the leading pair, among the regulars, were: Morgan, Cleveland 357; Gehrig, 364; Goslin, St. Louis, 345; Webb, 344; Cochrane, Philadelphia, 341; Alexander, Detroit, 340; West, Washington, 338; Averill, Cleveland, and Stone, Detroit, 328.

Cleveland batted at a 298 gait for another week and retained the team leadership. The Athletics fielded for 977, the same as last week, and held the top position. The St. Louis Browns remained far out in front in accomplishing double plays, with a total of 144.

Bob Grove, the A's peerless hurler, edged one victory closer to the 30 mark, and his record of 26 triumphs and three defeats left all opposition far behind. He also paced the league in strikeouts with 144 in 35 contests.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York, Sept. 5—(AP)—Since the St. Louis Cardinals practically have been conceding their second straight National League pennant, the most exciting race remaining for fans of the senior circuit is that between Bill Terry of the Giants and Chuck Klein of the Phillies for all the batting honors in sight.

The par, between them, hold the leadership in every department except one through Thursday's games. Sparky Adams of the Cardinals, with 40 doubles, is supreme in his specialty, but Bill and Chuck have the others wrapped up.

Terry is back at his old post as the league's leading hitter, with a mark of 348. Klein holds third place with 340. Terry has made the most hits, 182, and the most three-baggers, 17. Klein is the home run monarch, with 31 leads in runs batted in, with 106, and has scored the most runs, 109.

Terry finally managed to pass Virgil Davis, big backstop of the Phillies, during the past week Davis, through Thursday, held second place with an average of .345. Other leaders, with more than 100 times at bat, were Klein, 340; Bottomley, St. Louis 340; Hornsby, Chicago, 334; Grimm, Chicago, 331; Cuyler, Chicago 329; O'Doul, Brooklyn 328; Hafey, St. Louis 328, and Stripp, Cincinnati 326.

Hazen Cuyler of the Chicago Cubs, comes closest to matching Terry's 182 hits. He has rapped 175, one more than Klein.

Klein appears certain to grab the home run crown relinquished by Hack Wilson. His 31 round-trippers put him five ahead of his one outstanding rival, Mel Ott of the Giants.

The veteran Frankie Frisch, enjoying one of his greatest years with the Cardinals, has found time to run away with the league's base stealing honors. He has pilfered 24.

Jess Haines of the Cardinals continues to lead the pitchers of the circuit, with 11 victories and only three defeats. His closest rival is his rookie teammate, Paul Derringer, who has won 15 and lost six.

Do You Remember

One Year Ago Today—Tommy Freeman, the Arkansas buzz-saw from Cleveland and Erie, won the world's welterweight championship from Young Jack Thompson, Oakland negro, by outpointing him in 15 rounds at Cleveland. It was Thompson's first defense of the title he had won four months before.

Five Years Ago Today—As the New York Yankees lost an exhibition game to the Baltimore Orioles, 18 to 9, Babe Ruth and Mark Koenig, teammates, staged a fist fight in the Yankee dugout in the 7th inning.

Ten Years Ago Today—Middleweight champion Johnny Wilson and challenger Bryan Downey fought 12 tame rounds to a draw in the second title fight at Rickard's arena in Jersey City. Wilson's purse was ordered withheld by the boxing commission.

Lott And Vines In Startling Comeback

Forest Hill's, N. Y. Sept. 5—(AP)—Renewed hopes for an American winner in the Golden Jubilee national singles tennis championship starting today, have come from the performances of the United States in the final day of the International team matches at Philadelphia.

The comebacks of George Lott of Philadelphia and Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Cal., made their prospects look brighter and dimmed the hopes of George P. Hughes of England who fell before Lott. Fred Perry, leader of the British contingent and top seeded player on the foreign list, stood out a trifle above the rest.

Johnny Doe, the defending champion, has not shown much of the form that brought him the 1930 title.

Frank Shields, second on the seeded list, and Sydney Wood, the No. 3 man who won the Wimbledon championship by default from Shields, have rested mostly in the shadow of Vines' great performance this summer.

Double Header At Compton Tomorrow

(Telephone Special Service)

Compton, Sept. 5—Harmon's baseball team cancelled their Sunday engagement to meet Steward at the local diamond Sunday afternoon. A double header game had been arranged with the Steward-Harmon game as the main attraction to decide the county championship. The Compton Oilers will play Lee Center in the opening game. DeKalb Red Caps have been secured to fill in against Steward on account of Harmon's cancellation. The Compton Oilers are also scheduled to appear in a game at the Paw Paw Homecoming celebration Monday, Labor Day.

The year book of the National Recreation Association shows that 990 communities in the United States and Canada spent $38,518,194 for recreation during 1930, a year of depression, a gain of $5,000,000 over the previous year.

There are 10,000 villages in America without churches, 30,000 without resident pastors, and 30,400,000 children under 12 who are receiving no religious instructions.

On that day will be run the first annual grand terrapin sweepstakes, part of the Dallas Labor Day celebration. The turtles were gathered at Corsicana by children in the Odd Fellows Orphans Home.

Connoisseurs said the long train ride produced the proper state of lethargy in the reptiles. From this coma, they said, the racers will emerge in excellent condition.

The production of rust-free and acid-resisting steel is to be begun in Norway at a plant that will have an annual capacity of between 40,000 and 50,000 metric tons.

NEW SPEED BOAT RECORD EXPECTED LATE TODAY

Detroit River Will Be the Scene Of Trophy Race Today

Detroit, Sept. 5—(AP)—Barring mechanical trouble, or other mishaps common to such contests, a new world record for competitive speed boat racing will be set up late today when Gar Wood and Don meet in the first heat of the seventeenth renewal of the Harmsworth Trophy race.

Don, British challenger, and Wood who has held the trophy for more than a decade, have driven their hydroplanes, Miss England II and Miss America IX, respectively, at more than 100 miles an hour in the straightaway trials. The gourd-shaped Harmsworth course laid out in the Detroit river, probably will not permit a 100 mi'e pace, but last year's average for the Harmsworth of 77.390 miles an hour is considered certain to fall in the first 30 mile heat this afternoon.

Hazards Brought Home

The hazard of the high speed contest that have dogged every foreign attempt to wrest the trophy from Wood since he won it in England in 1920 were brought home in a measure to the gray-haired veteran defender late yesterday when during a test run with Miss America IX, the valve on one of the superchargers with which he has equipped his engines was blown out. Had this happened during the race, Wood's chief reliance in defense of the trophy would have been eliminated.

In the face of this mishap and despite the fact that a swarm of mechanics were needed on the big hydroplane throughout the night, Wood announced the withdrawal from the race of his Miss America V.

The action was taken as a gesture of sportsmanship and friendliness. It left Wood with Miss America VII and Miss America IX in the race, but at the same time made way for Horace Dodge's Miss Syndicate III to join the American team of three boats provided the racing committee decides the Dodge entry is seaworthy. Two've hours before the race, Miss Syndicate III had not been formally accepted by the racing committee and still had her qualifying trial.

Terrapin Racers Ready For Contest

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 5—(UP)—Veteran terrapin racers visited the temporary "tables" at the Marshall's Park 200 today, nodded their heads sagely over what resembled piled cobblestones, and said the signs were promising for fine sport Monday.

On that day will be run the first annual grand terrapin sweepstakes, part of the Dallas Labor Day celebration. The turtles were gathered at Corsicana by children in the Odd Fellows Orphans Home.

Connoisseurs said the long train ride produced the proper state of lethargy in the reptiles. From this coma, they said, the racers will emerge in excellent condition.

KARL VON BULOW
SILENT CONCERN-
ING WAR AFFAIRS

Chief Aid To the Head Of German Spies Wants
To Go To Mexico

Canon City, Colo., Sept. 5.—(UP)—His thin lips locked to questioners, Karl Von Bulow, declared to be "the man with a thousand faces" who was an ace of the German espionage system, sought today to keep the secret of his past while waiting deportation as an undesirable alien.

To Department of Justice agents, officers of the Immigration Department, and officials of the state penitentiary where he had spent the last 27 months, Von Bulow returned the same answer when attempts were made to unravel his history.

"It is all of the past," he said after his release from the prison where he was sent in 1929 for forgery.

Immigration authorities meanwhile were confronted with a problem which threatened to be unique in the annals of the Department.

Germany, according to information here does not want Von Bulow. Unless his German citizenship can be proved, it is believed he can not be forced upon a country which refuses to welcome him.

When that was explained, Von Bulow broke his silence long enough to tell one fact which may reveal him as Count Von Bulow, scion of a noble German family and chief aid of Capt. Karl Boyl, head of the German spy system in the United States during the World War.

He was born, he said, at Koenigsberg, Germany, in 1893. His birth record, under the name of Bulow, is listed at Koenigsberg he said.

Von Bulow talked freely of his reasons for hiding his identity.

"I am an undesirable," he said in clipped sentences.

"But I have made myself that. It is I who suffer and have suffered for my own actions. To keep my identity secret will at least save my family from sorrow. That is the least I can do."

Von Bulow wishes to leave the United States.

"Even if I could stay, the stigma of the ex-convict would hang over me," he said. "I am a single man. If I secure employment, despite my record, I would feel that in this period of depression, I might take work from a man with a family. I would not wish that."

"If I can get clear away, perhaps I can make a new start. My life has not been very happy one thus far. The lives of few men who have been in my work are happy."

In prison, the German's record was unique. He was a virtual overlord of the prisoners. Indisputable disorders were quelled at a word from this man of mystery. Prison officials regretted his release because of his control over the convicts.

As he left the prison, paroled because of good conduct, guards and prisoners lined up together to bid him farewell.

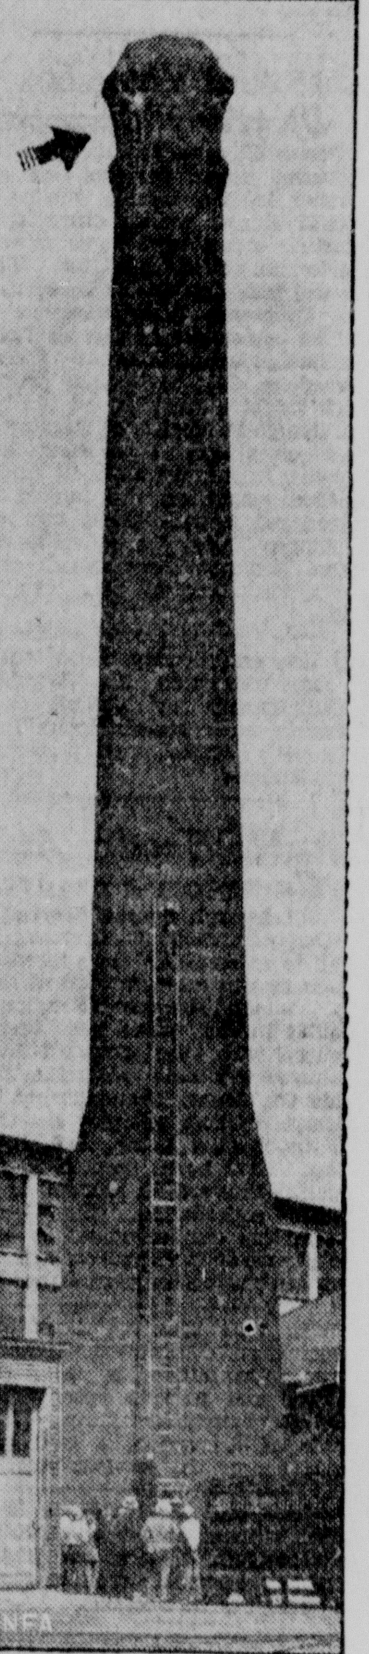

If Germany will not have him, Von Bulow asks to be deported to Mexico, where, he says, he has means of support.

"I have friends there," he said. "I don't think they have forgotten me."

CHEATING DEATH

HIGH UP AND HELPLESS—
Balanced on a six-inch ledge 140 feet above the ground, James E. Kemp, 63, is shown here on a chimney where he clung with one hand to a short length of rope for two hours at Rochester, N. Y., after seeing a fellow stepladder plunge to death when working broke. He first pulled himself to the top of the chimney, but this was too hot for comfort.

TRYING TO RESCUE HIM—Here you see firemen, coast guardsmen and bridge workers attempting to reach Kemp with extension ladders. They finally rescued him by shooting a line over the chimney with a life-saving gun. After a heavy rope had been drawn over the chimney top, a chair was sent up to him. Kemp calmly seated himself and was lowered to the ground.

The average family pays the doctor $75 a year.

The negro youngster, Merville George Washington Smith was here again from Princeton and most certainly entertained the crowd with his dancing. He is a real artist.

The concerts have furnished real good entertainment this summer, had drawn large crowds to our town. While the parking of the cars off of main street didn't please everybody, yet after a canvas of the business men it was decided to close the street anyhow. It gave the mothers a real chance to enjoy the concert and visit on the street, feeling sure that their children would not be hit by autos. The concerts bring but very little hardship on anyone in the financing of them. A levy of 1 mill on $1 valuation, the 1/1000th part of a dollar, small isn't it? For ten evenings entertainment for the entire family, and too, this money can be used for no other purpose but for band, or not at all. It is also a nice way of entertaining our friends from the country, they enjoy the band just as much as the town folks, and their children have just as good a time running on the streets as the other children, the large crowds at the band concerts, prove that they appreciate them, and appreciate the efforts of the town folks, who alone pay for the concerts, and all are welcome.

ABBE DECLARES
MOON DOES NOT
RULE WEATHER

A Famed French Expert
Says Effect Is Negligible

Paris —(UP)—The Abbe Moreau, Director of the Observatory of the Bourges, and famous as a prophet of good and evil days, has declared that in influence of the moon was practically negligible in its effects on the weather.

"The moon had no connection with changes in the atmosphere, which cause areas of depression, winds, rains and the extremes of all temperature," the Abbe said. "All that it affects on earth is the rising and falling tides."

The venerable Abbe asserted however, that both the ancients and not a few modern students believe that there are indications given by the moon which bear a close relation to weather predictions.

"We only have to cite the words of General Bugeaud, the conqueror of Isley, contained in one of his letters dated Nov. 14, 1841," the Abbe pointed out. "General Bugeaud wrote 'Evelyn times out of twelve, the weather during any lunar month can be judged by the 5th day; that is, if the 6th day resembles the 5th, and it being clear, the rest of the month will be more or less the same. If the 6th day is compared to the 4th day, the prediction comes true nine times out of twelve.'"

The Abbe Moreau observed, however that not only General Bugeaud wrote of this prediction, but said that it was known to the ancients, particularly to Virgil, who had mentioned it in the First Book of his Georgics.

The ancients believed that the 4th day of the new moon was indicative, and they believed it was an infallible sign, based on long observation.

Pliny, the Elder wrote, according to Abbe Moreau, "In Egypt it is observed that the 4th day of the new moon must be taken as an indication. If the lunar body shows itself clear on the fourth day, fine weather will continue throughout the month."

British Fliers Will Be Alone In Races
London, Sept. 4 —(UP)—Britain's aerial speed kings will attempt to drive their sea planes at 400 miles an hour in the Schneider Cup races Sept. 12, with no other nation competing.

The Royal Aero Club, which took over responsibility for the races last year when the Labor government said the Exchequer could not stand the expense, announced that British pilots would try for a record in the absence of French and Italian competition.

The unofficial mark was set at 400 miles an hour compared with the present world speed mark of 257.7 miles per hour held by Squadron Leader A. H. Orlebar.

France and Italy requested a six-months postponement of the races and withdrew when Britain refused the request. France and Italy said their teams were not ready for the races and that they could not let their pilots take the risk of competing.

SEVEN MAROONED ON ISLAND CRAG FOR RESCUE SHIP

Expedition In Quest Of Golden Fleece Wait Boat's Arrival

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 5.—(UP)—While seven persons waited today in a cag of precipitous Guadalupe island, the Coast Guard cutter Tamaroa steamed toward the lonely retreat to rescue the latest expedition which went there in quest of the golden fleece.

The Tamaroa sailed from San Pedro Thursday with aid for Mr. and Mrs. William Watson, their daughter, a Chinese cook, J. A. Woodcock, Orval Lindsay and a man named Bradshaw, who went to the island four months ago in an attempt to commercialize the wild goats which abound there.

The goats and sheep have had full reign of the island for nearly 150 years. Estimates place their number now at 200,000. They are the descendants of goats taken to the island by priests who failed in an attempt to start a colony.

Rugged conditions on the island were such that only goats could survive. In recent years nearly a dozen expeditions have been formed to exploit the goats. All have failed.

Recent Failure

The most recent failure, prior to word of the present case, was that of the F. S. Frisbee expedition, which returned to San Diego on the destroyer Aaron Ward after the Navy learned the party of four men and women were in dire distress and that a fishing vessel which had attempted to land aid had been wrecked by a hurricane. The Frisbee expedition reached San Diego shortly before Christmas, 1930.

Lack of communication with the Mexican mainland—lack of transportation and the barrenness of the rocky volcanic island which rises almost a mile out of the sea—were some of the factors in the failures of previous expeditions.

Rumors of pirates treasure buried in the caves on the island were one of the few remaining herds of town send fur seals live and where a herd of albino seals was recently discovered—has also proved a lure to many fortune hunters.

Guadalupe was once the haven for Pacific pirates who preyed upon the Spanish merchantmen as they sailed up the coast for the colonies in Alta California.

Daily Health Talk

EARACHE

There are two splendid rules which every parent should observe strictly. One is never to treat stomach ache with castor oil, the other not to put anything into an aching ear.

The aching tummy may be an acute inflammation of the appendix, for which there are few things worse than castor oil.

The aching ear may have a perforated drum which will allow whatever is put into it to enter the middle ear, where it may cause serious difficulties including mastoid inflammation.

If you choose to bide your time before calling for medical help, do so without instituting any harsh treatment.

Warmth is one of the best common agents for the relief of pain. It should be applied as dry heat by making the patient lie with the head on a half filled rubber hot water bottle.

As in all cases where heat is to be applied to the body, care should be taken to avoid burning the patient. If there be wax in the ear, do not try to remove it unless it is at the very end of the outer canal. Poking in the ear may damage the drum.

Infants may suffer earache before they are of age to describe the nature and position of their pain. However, such infants may rub the ear or bend the head toward the affected side.

Occasionally, the ear pain is due to diseased teeth, tonsil inflammation, or involvement of the mouth tissues near the inner ear canal opening.

In such instances local applications to the ear will do little to relieve pain.

Occasionally, what children call earache is pain due to enlargement of a lymph gland behind or beneath the ear or near the mastoid.

Sometimes this swelling is due to lice or to some slight skin infection.

Curtis Keeps His Plans To Himself

Washington, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The group of aspiring Republican candidates for Vice President is going to have to wait some time to learn the decision of Charles Curtis whether he will run for renomination or for his old seat from Kansas in the Senate next year.

As non-committal as ever, Mr. Curtis said he would not make his announcement of plans for "two or three months." He just smiled at the newspaper stories predicting he would run for the Senate and commented that "I have said nothing whatever about my plans and I will make my announcement in my own way and in due time."

Meanwhile, the Republican politicians are busy speculating. A large number of the party chieftains have urged Mr. Curtis to stand again for the Vice Presidency as a matter of party welfare.

While there are rumors that Mr. Hoover desires some other candidate as a running mate, it is generally agreed that he has given no indication of it. Many names of those close to the President are mentioned in this gossip.

But the Republican leadership is known also to be concerned at the reaction which would follow a decision by Mr. Curtis to cut loose from the Hoover ticket next year and cast his fortunes on a state race for the Senate instead.

A Democrat, C. C. McGill, has taken the seat vacated by Curtis when he went to the Vice Presidency. Henry J. Allen, a Republican, was appointed to fill it but he lost the ensuing election.

Slayer Of Indiana Deputies Returned

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Samuel Baxter, 23, who was captured in Albuquerque, N. M., was brought back here yesterday to face a charge of first degree murder in the slaying of two deputy sheriffs three and a half years ago.

The prisoner was shot in the leg when he attempted to escape from the Albuquerque police and made the long journey on a cot in a baggage car. He was in custody of Sheriff Arthur G. Eversole of Tippecanoe county and John H. Kluth, Lafayette Police Chief.

John Burns, alleged to have been Baxter's companion in the double slaying of deputies John Groves and Wallace McClure, was captured in May 1928 and now is serving a life sentence in the Indiana state prison. Baxter, however, escaped and was located a week ago working with a steel construction gang on a veterans hospital building in Albuquerque.

BOUND TO BE READ

"The Sea and the Land," by Josef Israels II (Doubleday Doran) is a story which shifts from Africa to a Harlem night club, then back to Africa again. A flimsy plot is employed and one suspects that Israels wrote the book chiefly because he has a good working knowledge of navigation and life in Africa.

Scant attempt is made at characterization and the book contains in the character of George R. Harrison, one of the most wonderful racketeers ever caught between book covers. His speeches are mixtures of pure and poetic prose and the argot of the underworld. The plot is melodramatic, dealing with the attempt of an Abyssinian nobleman to smuggle arms an ammunition into his country with the aid of Harrison.

"The Champion From Far Away" is the title of a collection of Ben Hecht's short stories, published by Covici, Fried. Hecht is not quite so ribald here as in his novels but these stories can stand on their own feet. Here you will find giant wrestlers, ventriloquists, bull fighters, Sinn Feiners movie magnates and other delightful company.

You will enjoy them.

The faults, contradictions, and idiosyncrasies of life as lived in the United States have been collected by Morris L. Ernst into "America's Primer," (Geo. P. Putnam's Sons), which asks many pertinent and irreverent questions about America's "national plan."

Unlike Russia's Five Year Plan, or Mexico's less formal Ten Year scheme of national development, our national pattern is seen by Ernst as an informal and confused, but none the less effective one.

Alongside overflowing wheat elevators in the Middle West, he finds our cities with the longest breadlines in the world; millions of unemployed, but more wealth per capita than ever known before in any country; rugged individualism preached by national leaders, while we regiment our lives by chain stores, snappy slogans, mergers canned music and the talkies.

We work primarily to live he says, then for fun or power, or praise, but most of all for things. Some things we need some are pleasant to have but the possession of many things is simply a method of public boasting. And we have made too many things—more than we or the world, can buy. Hence the millions of idle workers and the relief committees.

"America's Primer" is a remedy for any one, who, in 1931 suffer from the feeling that we are the perfect people in the best of all possible worlds.

New York—Civilization has kept our nose to the grindstone this whole week.

Two somewhat weighty tomes on the subject have constituted the major part of this week's chore. "Man's Own Show: Civilization," by Dr. George A. Dorsey and "Modern Civilization on Trial" by C. De-lisle Burns are the books.

Dr. Dorsey's, written in the same Behave Like Human Beings, covers interesting style as his "Why We 977 pages and contains 390,000 words. Mr. Burns' is somewhat less lengthy, but 399 or so pages added to 977 makes quite a tidy bit of spare time reading.

Dr. Dorsey's book gives a panoramic view of man's struggle up from the apes, of his life from the earliest times to the present. He sees modern civilization in the throes of a crisis and he believes America has added complications because of its gangs and racketeers.

He takes issue with many of the accepted precepts. His statements on religion, marriage, President Herbert Hoover, prohibition, morals and other controverted subjects doubtless will provoke some to fury. He warns that civilization today may be on the verge of going backward instead of forward.

Mr. Burns pictures modern civilization as a continuous process rather than a finished product, so he says "therefore the time has not come for an estimate of its true value; but the analysis of the situation, attempted in this book, is in tended as a basis for action, both in public policy and in personal action."

WELCOME 'PLAINNESS'

After so much civilization it was somewhat of a relief to turn to a sequel to "The Life of an Ordinary Woman" by Anne Ellis. It is called "Plain Anne Ellis" and like the first book it is a virile fulfillment of its title.

Mrs. Ellis considers herself an ordinary woman, unadorned by special characteristics or unusual abilities. But she stands as an individual because of her pungent physical and because she has double the usual allotment of will and determination. She is able to talk of life as she has seen it, simply and clearly.

Anne Ellis tells of her life in the west, in which the main threads are the rearing of a family of children with no money for the process, and the endeavor to find a vantage point in life from which to see out over surrounding responsibilities.

She sewed, cooked dinner for the women of the vicinity, schemed for her children's clothing and good time. Always she struggled for self-improvement.

Justification for the title fit each page. Anne Ellis lives without artificialities, and with straightforward naturalness. She writes as she lives.

EXTRA MEASURE—

For the rest there are several very good novels in this week's output. "All Passion Spent," is new novel by V. Sackville-West, is filled with interesting characters, not an important one of which is under eighty.

They move gracefully through the pages, knowing everything so well "that they could no longer afford to express it save in symbols." Lady Slane is worth mentioning.

"The Story of Julian" by Susan Ertz makes real the daily life and the personalities of another group Julian Probert and Hildegard at quite as interesting, if different tempt to escape the troubles of their elders, which seem to hem them in on all sides. Miss Ertz pictures them sympathetically.

ENGLAND OF THE '40s—

England before the war, back in the 1840's, is described in "Sheila Kaye-Smith's "Susan Spray." The book is dominantly a character study of Susan, but she is affected by both the simplicity and the depression of the Sussex countryside.

Susan is strongly influenced by religion. As a child she is said to have the "gift of sight," and she eventually becomes a woman preacher. Miss Kaye-Smith deals with her development with both insight and power.

In "Albert Grope," F. O. Mann's central character is a charwoman's son, a boy from London's poorest tenements who climbs to business success over the handicap of a very sentimental faith in humanity. Success, he feels, should mean friends. Mr. Mann's keen observation and ironic humor help him to paint excellent portraits of the "friends" who gather about him.

THE AMERICAN SCENE—

Returning from old England to America, several books of the week are studies of the country during different periods. "Old Philadelphia," a set of four brief books by George Gibbs, contains four charming stories inlaid in picturesque Philadelphia settings. The set is a companion to Edith Wharton's well-known series about "Old New York."

"The Big Bonanza," by C. B. Glascock, tells the story of the Comstock Lode. A first novel, "The Border," by Dagmar Doneghy, treats of Civil War days on the Kansas-Missouri border.

Other books that deserve mention include "John Henry," by Robert Bradford, the legend of a gigantic Negro roustabout, and "Dodd the Potter," by Cedric Beardsmore, who is Arnold Bennett's nephew.

The fire of the Russian Revolution is contained in "February 1919" by Aleksei Tarasov-Rodionov. The author played an important role in the Revolution, and adds the vividness of first-hand knowledge to his energetic style.

NEW RUSSIAN HISTORY—

International Publishers is issuing the first volume of the three volume "History of Russia," by Prof. M. N. Pokrovsky, Russian vice commissar of education

SHOW DOWN NEARS IN CHILEAN NAVY REBELLION CRISIS

Cabinet Sends Planes to Combat Mutinous Red Sailors

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 5.—(UP)—The Chilean government broke off negotiations with Communist-supported mutinous sailors controlling the fleet today and prepared to send bombing planes against the mutineers.

Six Junkers airplanes and six Dornier-Wahls, each carrying 1,000 kilograms of bombs, were to proceed from Valparaiso to Coquimbo in case the Navy started a bombardment of northern ports.

Severe fighting was reported from Concepcion between rebels and federalists. The city was reported recaptured by Gen. Novoa. Casualties were said to have been heavy on both sides. Communication with Concepcion was completely disrupted.

The logical move by the government appeared to be an attempt to cut off the mutineers' food supply by occupying the ports.

The leader of the mutinous sailors was said to be a navy electrician, Rocio Reyes, who joined the Navy in 1911. It was understood he became converted to extremist ideas during his stay in England while the battleship Almirante La Torre was there.

The cabinet's decision to cease negotiations with the mutineers was reached shortly after midnight.

Rebel Showdown. The situation apparently had reached a show down with the following alignment of loyal forces and elements opposing the government.

The mutineers control practically the entire Navy with the most modern fighting ships in South America. The amount of food aboard is not believed to be great.

The mutinying sailors have the support of Chilean Communists although the mutineers have not said that their movement is Communist. They also are supported by dock workers and other laborers' organizations.

The equipment of the Chilean battle fleet is sufficiently strong to do great damage to sea coast cities. The battle cruiser Almirante La Torre was reconducted recently in England as a cost of 7,000,000. The Chilean sailors are probably the best trained in South America.

The government counted on support of the Army, the Army Air Corps, the Civil Guard, and recruits enlisted by garrison commanders during the present crisis. It also counted on popular support from all Chileans.

Army Remains Loyal. The Army and the Air Corps appeared loyal to the government although there were reports of revolt among units of the Coast Guard at Valparaiso which might spread into the Army. The General Staff of the Aviation Corps met immediately after the cabinet session to map out a campaign for using the Air Force against the mutinous fleet.

It was pointed out, however, that the government had given previous orders for units of the Air Force to proceed to Coquimbo which were disregarded.

Messages from Coquimbo late yesterday said the mutiny had been settled through negotiations conducted by Rear Admiral Eduardo Von Schroeder. Similar reports here were later denied.

While Von Schroeder negotiated with the mutineers' committee on the deck of the Almirante La Torre, the cabinet was in constant session here, attempting to reach concrete terms in a reported "agreement in principle" reached with the sailors. The negotiations finally collapsed.

Foreigners living in the Los Leones section here, including many Americans, British, French, and Germans, obtained permission from the government to arm themselves and form their own vigilante service. It was agreed to make use of their arms only in an emergency.

A street car strike continued here and several cars were stoned. Car strikers rapidly.

FALSE CHARGES AGAINST WOMAN STRICKEN OUT

Confession Of Another Clears Accused Of Fraud Charge

Chicago, Sept. 5.—(UP)—The name of Mary Berner, 28, was deleted from jail and court records and she started back home to Cedar Rapids, Ia., wearing her first smile in two years.

She had Joanna Downes, a Chicago woman attorney, to thank for the fact that Judge John J. McGoorty ordered her name struck from all records of a confidence game case.

Two years ago the Cedar Rapids woman was working for a mail order house here. She was charged with passing worthless checks and spent four months in the county jail awaiting trial. Then a jury convicted her. She was allowed to go home on probation.

Friends came while she was in jail to urge her to plead guilty so her sentence would be lighter.

"I'd rather die in jail," she told them. "I'm not guilty and I'll prove it some day."

Since that day she had held up her head in Cedar Rapids, despite the stares of one-time friends. Meantime the Chicago woman lawyer worked on the case.

Today Judge McGoorty summoned Martha Lutz from the county jail where she is serving a year's sentence for passing worthless checks. The Lutz woman confessed passing the checks for which Miss Berner was convicted.

Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Proctor NORMA KENT, 20-year-old secretary in a law office, married MARK TRAVERS, son of F. M. TRAVERS, millionaire real estate dealer, after the father has sworn to cut Mark off without a penny if the marriage takes place. Norma has known Mark only a few weeks, did not know during the courtship that he was a millionaire's son.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. CHRISTINE SAUNDERS, with whom Norma shared an apartment, and BRADLEY HART, Christine's employer, are witnesses at the wedding. But the Norma has repeatedly refused to marry HUB FAUREL, young lawyer of whom she is fond as a friend.

Mark sells his expensive roadster to get money for the honeymoon trip. He and Norma depart for Blue Springs, fashionable resort. As the train speeds south Mark tells her there is something he has forgotten to mention.

NEW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

MARK dug one hand down into his waistcoat pocket before he spoke again. He drew out a box.

A very tiny box of dazzling whiteness. He snapped the lid back and a gleaming circlet of diamonds appeared. They were set in a band of platinum.

"Almost forgot about this," he said. "Let's see if it fits."

He slipped the jeweled band over the third finger of Norma's left hand. The ring twinkled up at her like star-dust. The tiny diamonds became a disc of fire. They flashed white heat into the dusky train compartment. Or were they tear drops frozen and strung like beads?

"How—how beautiful!"

Words were such useless things. They failed Norma completely. Something hot and choking gathered in her throat. She could not speak. Almost she could not breathe. Never had she dreamed anyone could be so frighteningly, ecstatically happy.

And so because she could not find the words to answer the girl raised her two hands, one to either of Mark's cheeks, held his face closely for a long instant, and then pressed her lips to his.

Oh, these two were so young, so very much in love!

"But the ring does fit! See—it's just right!" she was insisting a little later.

Mark disagreed. He held up the encircled finger to prove the band slipped about too loosely. There was the possibility of losing the ring. He had not realized what slender, delicate fingers his bride had.

"We can have it made smaller at Blue Springs," he suggested.

Fear that she might lose the wedding ring made Norma agree at once. Words came easily now. Over and over she told Mark how beautiful the diamonds were. She meant this, yet it was not the beauty of the stones and their setting which awed her. It was the significance of the ring. This band on her finger was the symbol of marriage. It told the world she was Mark Travers's wife.

"Good Lord—it IS late! You'll be starved!" Mark made a lunge at the electric button which summoned the porter. Within 15 minutes they were being served dinner.

In response to a telegram to his mother Mark's luggage arrived. The couple went to a smart shop and bought sports clothes for Norma. They bought an ivory lace dance dress which Mark said made her look like a dainty porcelain figurine on a Dresden lamp. There were pink roses artfully caught in the lace.

THE first night Norma wore this gown she had to refuse dances to three youths Mark had introduced. She couldn't think of dancing with anyone except her husband!

Mark was tactful. It was due to this tactfulness and Norma's blindness to everyone else about them that she did not feel out of place in her new surroundings. It did not occur to her that she was almost the only feminine guest at the Blue Springs Inn who did not play golf

"Happy, kid?"

"Oh—of course!"

At Blue Springs there began a world of only Norma and Mark with dimly visionary strangers occasionally drifting in and out of the background—waiters who served their meals, chauffeurs who drove the motor cars in which they rode, golf caddies, an orchestra, other dancers who might have been miles away for all their presence on the dance floor meant to these two.

Blue Springs was completely perfect and it was completely theirs.

It was nearly noon when they arrived. True to Mark's prediction the sun was shining. Great fleecy clouds, moving so slowly that they seemed stationary, darkened the azure sky by their whiteness. It had been crisp October in Marlboro. Blue Springs was cool enough for light wraps, warm enough that seasoned bathers were still taking their daily dips.

The arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Travers had not been unheralded. Clicking cameras were the first indication of the welcoming committee. Newspaper photographers, having secured informal photographs, asked the newly married couple to pose. While Norma hesitated Mark gave cheerful assent. There was a girl reporter on hand to ask details of the romance. Mark's replies to her questions were sketchy, satisfactory because about them the young woman was able to weave a glowing, modern Cinderella story about the beautiful stenographer who married a millionaire's son.

"And do your parents approve the marriage?" the reporter asked. "Oh, yes! Certainly!"

The other side of this story reached telegraphic press services shortly after F. M. Travers, in Marlboro, saw reproductions of the Blue Springs' photographs in his morning newspaper. Pungent and brief were F. M. Travers's remarks.

Neither Mark nor Norma read these comments. They posed for the photographers again the second day because the young men had proved friendly and it seemed a simple favor to grant. And since Norma's blond beauty happened to be the sort which photographs idealize, and young love is a subject universally appealing, the pictures appeared in newspapers from coast to coast.

A new magazine—one Mark liked particularly—saved the day. He sighted it on a newsstand, returned a moment later with the gaily-covered periodical.

"Look, Norma—look at Bardwell's latest!"

Bardwell's latest was a drawing in highly satirical vein. Having shared this prize Mark sank back into a huge club chair and forgot everything else. The girl found a book she had glanced through the day before and settled down to read also.

It was past mid-afternoon before the young man roused himself. He discovered the rain had ceased. "Like to take a run out and see what the day is like?" he demanded.

"ABE LINCOLN OF THE SEA," AT 77, STILL BATTLES FOR WORKERS

Andy Furuseth, Who Freed Sailors From Bondage, Blames Worthless Stocks for Large Part of Present Depression

By PHILIP J. SINNOTT
NEA Service Writer

San Francisco—At 77, Andrew Furuseth, variously called "the grand old man of labor unionism," and "the Abe Lincoln of the sea," is still actively fighting the battles of those who toil.

Equally at home among millionaires and day laborers, this white-haired veteran of half a century of fiery disputes between workers and their employers continues to tramp the far corners of the world aiding his fellow men.

Furuseth is president of the International Seamen's Union, but more important is the fact that he is advisor to the American Federation of Labor in nearly every important matter involving questions of human rights which frequently arise in labor disputes and fights for labor legislation.

Andy Furuseth is perhaps the most picturesque of present day labor leaders.

Tall, lean, straight and rugged, with sharp blue eyes, he carries in his veins the blood of the Hardy Norsemen of old. He was born in Norway in 1854 and sailed before the mast when yet in his teens.

His formal education was meager, yet he has been called a human encyclopedia, for he can talk on any subject from medieval guild system to modern economics. He is logical, terse, quaint and fervid.

Unmarried, Furuseth lives alone in his home at San Francisco but spends much of his time in Washington, where he has an office in the American Federation of Labor building.

Just recently, he journeyed up the west coast to Portland, Ore., meeting humble seamen as he himself once was, and talking over current problems.

He ascribes a large part of the depression to worthless stocks.

"Since 1924," he declared, "more than $24,000,000,000 of worthless securities have been saddled onto the American public. People naturally want to get rich quickly, and the result, the sick salesman of watered stock has an easy time of it, and we—why, we have a depression period."

There is not much about the seamen's life that Furuseth does not know. He learned a lot and became embittered through his own experiences with rotten food, dirty fore-castles, brutal masters, scant pay and virtual slavery during the 12 years he sailed the seas.

He traveled to most of the ports of the civilized world on Norwegian, Dutch, German, British and American boats. He worked with all sorts of men under all sorts of conditions. He decided that the seamen's lot must be bettered and that it was his task.

Finally, he quit the sea and came ashore at San Francisco in the '80s. Seated on a few drifted ship timbers he formed the first Seamen's Union of the Pacific and set out on a campaign for reform. Since then he has continued at the helm as chieftain of union seamen.

In 1892 he was leader of the organization of the International Seamen's Union of America.

pendent regards as "the crucial states"—New York, Ohio, Illinois, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and Maryland.

"The replies to the poll," the magazine said, "revealed that support of Governor Roosevelt is centered in the west while that of Baker is in the east."

The number of pro-Baker editors who asked that their opinions be treated as confidential would indicate that they will accept Roosevelt without protest although they believe the New York Governor far less able.

"One significant phase of the poll was that no editor or any section favored the nomination of an ex- and out dry. In fact, the southern editors revealed that even that section is far less dry than it was in 1928."

ANDREW FURUSETH

In 1894, he went to Washington and laid a program before Congress. For 21 years he fought courageously for human rights and in 1915 the act known as the LaFollette seamen's law, was passed. Thus the American sailor was assured being treated as a human being.

He had succeeded in 1908 in preventing all American ships in American harbors from imprisoning sailors who left their ships in port, and the LaFollette law added the same provision regarding foreign ships in American harbors.

He attended international meetings of transport workers and almost single-handedly battled wealthy ship owners in many foreign countries in an effort to gain new rights for the sailors.

Furuseth became a dominant figure at American Federation of Labor meetings and was consulted about great strikes among iron and steel workers and other union men.

Odd and independent, he is respected by every union man in America. His friends in foreign countries are legion. His knowledge of law and history, gained from long hours of study, have so well stocked his mind that he is seldom contradicted.

Furuseth's aims are still those of rugged righteousness; to provide and maintain adequate wages, working and living conditions through unionism, to keep his men in line, to make them save their money, keep sober and learn that to win other's respect they must first respect themselves.
